

The Warner School
Warner School Writing Consultant Services

Writing in the Social Sciences

Writing for Social Scientists: How to Start and Finish Your Thesis, Book, or Article by Howard S. Becker

Advises on efficient ways to produce and publish academic work. Not a step by step guide or easy fix but an excellent resource.

A Short Guide to Writing about Social Science by Lee J. Cuba

Advices on the writing and revising processes. Includes sections on writing a library research paper and on writing about original research.

Writing Literature Reviews: A Guide for Students of the Social and Behavioural Sciences by Jose L. Galvan

A comprehensive guide to writing reviews of empirical research: starts with how to read documents in their disciplines; discusses literature reviews as part of essays, dissertations, journal articles; includes samples.

Making Sense: a student's guide to research and writing: social sciences by Margot Northey; Lorne Tepperman; James Mackenzie

Advise on designing your study, using your data and writing your paper

A Short Guide to Writing About Social Science by Lee J Cuba

A guide to writing and rewriting: research using the internet, writing the literature review, choosing a topic, writing your exam